

Maunganidze

Representation and Materialization of Architecture and Space in Zimbabwe

Between National Icons and Dispositifs

This volume is an empirical study examining the extent to which historic and iconic architecture and spaces in Zimbabwe - particularly in urban areas - have been mobilized to construct and reconstruct identities. The author explores the question of traditional and political architecture through analysis of a variety of structures, including monuments, museums, and indigenous and state buildings. Special attention is paid to the soapstone-carved Zimbabwe Bird, which for years has served as the national emblem. Overall, this book argues that while the production and use of architectural products and spaces have been regarded symbols of collective identity, they have also served as expressions of power and control.

This is an empirical study, which examines the extent to which historic and iconic architecture and spaces in Zimbabwe - particularly in urban areas - have been mobilized to construct and reconstruct identities. The author explores the question of traditional and political architecture through analysis of a variety of structures, including monuments, museums, indigenous and state buildings. Special attention is paid to the Zimbabwe Bird, which for years has served as the national emblem of the country. Overall, this book argues that while the production and use of architectural products and spaces have been regarded symbols of collective identity they have also served as expressions of power and control.

139,09 €

129,99 € (zzgl. MwSt.)

Lieferfrist: bis zu 10 Tage

Artikelnummer: 9783031477607

Medium: Buch

ISBN: 978-3-031-47760-7

Verlag: Springer Nature Switzerland

Erscheinungstermin: 06.02.2024

Sprache(n): Englisch

Auflage: 1. Auflage 2024

Produktform: Gebunden

Gewicht: 430 g

Seiten: 153

Format (B x H): 160 x 241 mm

