Daily Life in Ancient Egyptian Settlements

In 2019 the German Archaeological Institute Cairo held the symposium "Daily Life in Ancient Egyptian Settlements" at Aswan's International Museum of Nubia. The symposium was meant to establish exchange between international projects working on settlement, or respectively household archaeology in Egypt. This volume is representing a small collection of papers held on this occasion, and addressing modern research methodologies for various aspects of daily life in Ancient Egypt through time. The papers hopefully will inspire the continuation of the fruitful discussion across nationalities of researchers, across regions of Egypt and/or across periods of Egyptian history as well as across specific topics, like food or trade, which was started in Aswan.
